(3) Reasons for the revision of financial forecasts

The consolidated financial performance for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2021 is expected to substantially exceed our initial estimates since the volume of precious metals collected for recycling is steady and precious metal prices are rising in precious metal recycling business in Japan. Also, the sales of refined products and financial transactions are increasing in precious metal refining business in North America. Therefore, the first half period consolidated financial forecasts and the full-term consolidated financial forecasts were revised accordingly.

One of the major revenue transactions for the precious metal refining business in North America is a financial service transaction that produces revenue from advance provision of metal to counterparties. Until the fiscal year ended March 31, 2020, the revenue from this transaction was recorded as revenue, while the corresponding interest payment was recorded as finance expenses. From the fiscal year ending March 31, 2021, the presentation method has been changed by recording the corresponding interest payment in cost of sales, and the descriptions of the financial results for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2020 are also changed. As a result of this change, the description of the results of operating income for the full-term of the fiscal year ended March 31, 2020 decreased by 2,108 million yen compared with the previous method. There is no impact on profit before tax and profit attributable to owners of parent.

2. Revision of Dividend Forecast

(1) Revision of dividend forecast for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2021

	Annual Dividend
	End of second quarter	End of FY	Total
Previous forecast (Announced on April 30, 2020)	70 yen	70 yen	140 yen
Revised forecast	80 yen	80 yen	160 yen
Results for the current FY
Results for the previous FY (FY ended March 31, 2020)	60 yen	70 yen	130 yen

(2) Reasons for the revision of dividend forecast

In this revised full-term consolidated financial forecast, revenue, operating income, profit before tax and profit attributable to owners of parent are all projected to be record high. Based on this judgment, the Company plans to increase its dividend payment both at the end of second quarter and fiscal year by 10 yen each from 70 yen in the previous forecast, and the total annual dividend of the year is planned to be 160 yen.

The above forecasts have been prepared based on the information available at the time of issuance of this announcement. Actual results may differ from the aforementioned forecasts due to a variety of factors including domestic and international industrial activities, financial trends, transition of precious metal prices and others, which are affected by the spread of COVID-19 infections.
